THE DUST RUN THE TRIAL

BY SIMON GUERRIER

Jenna Stannis has grown up as a spacer, where the normal rules don't apply. No school, no police, no public imperatives – that's still all to come. But the situation on Earth is changing and the effects are slowly being felt throughout the Vega system. It's going to mean trouble for a brash boy called Townsend – who Jenna doesn't fancy at all.

Soon Jenna and Townsend are competing in the Dust Run – racing shuttles through an asteroid field without using computers, making the complex calculations in their heads. It's dangerous, fool-hardy and really good fun. But they're playing for the highest of stakes...

The election is going to change everything. A man called Roj Blake promises the voters new hope, an end to years of corruption. There are those who can't let him be heard. But Jenna Stannis is determined to get his message out to the colonies.

It's been years since the Dust Run, and Jenna's a changed woman. She's left the Vega system far behind, using her exceptional piloting skills to carve out a life as a smuggler. Blake's message could earn her a fortune – or cost her, her life.
